Leading CEOs Summit

The changing role of CEOs in sustaining a competitive edge in today's global economy.

In the rapidly changing world of business today, the definition of leadership is changing and CEOs are expected to be visionaries, who lead their organizations to higher levels of achievement, and there is the added pressure to make quick and proactive decisions as their organizations' images and futures depend on innovative actions.

Datamatix developed the Leading CEO's Summit to address the challenges and issues faced by CEOs and acknowledge their contribution to economic development. This high profile event gathers leaders and experts from around the globe and provides a platform for them to interact and share views and experiences on the changing role of CEOs in sustaining a competitive edge in today's global economy.

As stewards of business in this era of increased competition, CEOs are compelled to consider how to transform their organizations to become more innovative, responsible and profitable. Organized annually around themes, like "Future Challenges for Leadership", "Global Leadership Experiences", "Public and Private Sector Leadership", the Summit brings together regional and global C-level executives to access new models, share experiences and expertise, and discuss issues that affect the bottom line and how business decision-makers should address them, and best practices that can make their organizations world class.

I think the younger generations, the people poised to dominate the workforce, are more socially conscious. They are more demanding in terms of environment and how that environment contributes to their life.
